I am a dedicated academic with a Ph.D. in Economics and a strong foundation in economic theory, quantitative analysis, and contemporary economic issues. My expertise spans teaching, research, and policy analysis, particularly in trade, commerce, and market research. I have led and coordinated various research projects, including studies on tourism, inequality, and SME development, in collaboration with international organizations like UNESCAP and USAID. With extensive experience in teaching economics and finance courses at the University of Prince Mugrin and other institutions, I am committed to fostering a culture of excellence and innovation. My proficiency in econometric software and analytical tools enables me to tackle complex economic challenges, contributing to both academic and policy-oriented discussions.
